

Down to Earth

The principles of 'Water Sensitive Urban Design' have been used to construct this drainage basin. Stormwater collects in the basin and filters through the soil to recharge the local water table.

The seedlings planted here strip nutrients from the water, helping them to grow while cleaning the water.

Watch them grow!

May 2012

